Ponton—Whitten

A pretty home wedding was solemnized on the 8th at the home of J. P. Whitten, at Stonewall, Appomattox county, when Marion Ponton led Miss Laura J. Whitten to the altar. The wedding was very quiet, only the immediate family being present. The groom is the oldest son of Rev. and Mrs. A. J. Ponton, of Pamplin, and a veteran of the world war, having served with the 80th division in France. The bride is the third daughter of Mr and Mrs. J. T. Whitten, of Stonewall. Rev. A. J. Ponton, father of the groom, performed the ceremony. Immediately after the marriage the happy couple and the officiating minister motored to Pamplin where they will reside for the present. In spite of secrecy a number of young friends of the couple got wise and gave them a merry and noisy serenade, together with many warm congratulations at the Presbyterian manse at night.

Select Seed Corn in the Field

If next year's seed corn has not been selected, it should be done at once. Selection in the field is much better than in the crib, says C. K. McQuarrie, state agent in Florida.

The first thing to look for is the type that seems best adapted to your soil and general conditions. Select the best ears of that type in the field and from stalks grown under moral conditions. A large stalk with a large ear grown under unusually favorable conditions, such as wide spacing or a fertile spot, should not be considered. Select ears from medium sized stalks, grown under ordinary conditions. The farmer thus gets to the most important point in seed selection, parentage. The ear should occupy a position neither too low nor too high on the stalk. For Florida weather conditions a drooping ear, one with a long neck and a hanging point, in order to turn water, is preferred to an erect ear. The ear that is well protected from hot sun and rain by a medium weight shuck is desirable. Ears having well-rounded out butts and tips are more attractive and have a higher percentage of grain.

A day or two should be spent in going over the field, selecting these ears and marking them in some way so that as the corn is gathered these marked ears can be kept separated and stored in a special place. When time permits, examine this corn carefully and shell it out for next spring's planting. — The Progressive Farmer.

Catarrhal Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure catarrhal deafness, and that is by a constitutional remedy. Catarrhal Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result. Unless the inflammation can be reduced and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever. Many cases of deafness are caused by catarrh, which is an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces. Hall's Catarrh Medicine acts thru the blood on the mucous surfaces of the system.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Catarrhal Deafness that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Medicine. Circulars free. All Druggists. 75c.
